APPRECIATION

The 1939 Log has been compiled for everyone interested in Melrose High School. It has been the aim of the staff to publish a book that will portray high school life and activities in the truest possible manner, and to picture the high school as it really is.

If these aims have been achieved to any extent, it is due to the cooperation of the student body, the faculty, the advertisers, the photographers, and the printers.

The Log Staff wishes to extend its deepest appreciation to Mr. Stanley C. Battles, our ever helpful guide and adviser; to Miss Goodrich, our art instructor, for her invaluable guidance in designing; to Miss Griffin and the students of her Office Practice class for typing the copy; and to Ivan Burney, our photographer, whose unusually interesting pictures add enjoyment to this Year Book.

There's a marching sea
And a wild breeze
And sunshine on the waves,
And ships go down
To any town
By the long, broad way it paves.

There's a firm brown hand
On the bronze wheel
That's lived with sea and sky,
That marks the tide
Where breakers chide
And sees the storms swoop by.

As the pilot goes
And the crew departs
And the ship breaks sail for home,
We've still the chart,
Have we learned the art
To sail the ship—alone?

In his freshman year, John was one of the four freshmen to ever receive a Varsity letter in track. His chief occupation is telling people he is John and not Bill. All his spare time is spent in converting a 1929 Ford into a racing car. He is planning to enter aviation upon graduation from M. H. S.

Marguerite's one ambition is to see her name opposite the word, "dress designer", on the screen at your favorite theater.

NORMA MARIE AHEARN

"Hopper" "Angel" "Nim"

Operetta 3; Masque and Wig 3, 4; Girls' Club 3, 4.

The fall of '37 found Norma arriving just in the "Nick" of time to cheer our famed "Red Raiders" on to victory over her former Malden cohorts. BARBARA ANN BAILEY

Joe's future is undecided, but we feel sure it will be of the outstanding quality he has shown in all his work here.

ELINOR LEARNED BENEDICT

Although she appears to be rather quiet, and, shall we say "grindy" at school, she really can play tennis better than most of us. She can also swim and ride well. BARBARA BOLTON

"Barbe"

Lincoln School. Operetta 3; Girls' Club 3, 4.

Everyone knows this tall, stately girl with dark hair, dimples, and a nice complexion. One of Barbe's favorite past times is to drive like mad through the streets in a black phaeton. Among the quieter members of our class, is unassuming and fun-loving Margie. Her favorite sports are swimming, canoeing, and basketball. Margie would go without eating to hike ten miles or more. Her hobbies are coin collecting, reading, and writing. We are sure to hear more of Margie, as she intends to go on writing.

As a freshman, Don's pleasing personality, wide smile, and good nature quickly won him many friends. HARRY H. BRIGGS

Roosevelt School. Baseball 1; Football 2; Outing Club 4; Imprint 4; Hi-Y 4.

Harry, an ardent follower of swing music, came to us from the Roosevelt School in 1935. Besides being regarded as "in the groove" by his many friends on both the clarinet and the saxophone, and being quite athletically inclined, Harry also manages to get along easily with the fair sex. Next year Harry will enroll at Tilton Academy and then on to Bowdoin!

SARA BRISSETTE

Lincoln School. Freshman Girls' Club; Euclidean Society 3; Bowling 3.

Enrolling in 1935, Sara was just an embarrassed freshman like the rest of us, but she covered it up with her reserved and unassuming manner. Sara has made an exceptionally fine record during her four years here in the Commercial Secretarial Course. She will carry on this record in later life since she has the ability, personality, and companionable disposition that the business world demands.

MILTON BRITTON

During her four years at high school, Lorraine has become one of the best liked girls of her class. Her cheery disposition and warm friendly smile have played no small part in making her so popular. Her special interests are good books and movies. In whatever you undertake, Helen, here is luck to you in the future.

JOHN BUCKLEY

"Buck" "Johnny"

Buck came to us after spending one year at Malden Catholic. Buck's activities outside of school kept him out of sports, but he is one of the most ardent fans for Melrose High teams and the Boston Olympics. Johnny plans to be a radio announcer. We wish him the best of luck.

EDNA BURGESS

"Eddie" "Ed"

Roosevelt School. Girls' Club 3, 4; Red Cross 2, 3; Operetta 3.

This versatile young miss has blonde, curly hair and brown eyes, and a habit of day-dreaming. So, if you saw her day-dreaming often in school, you know now it is because her biggest interest is outside of school. Eddie plans to enter the Melrose Hospital to train for a nurse, and we all know that she will succeed in her chosen profession.

This petite blonde, with her sparkling eyes and contagious laugh, has won many friends all through High School. She is so tiny you have to look twice for her, but her winning personality makes up for any slightness in size. Already noted for her marvelous meals, Bev wishes to continue her work as a dietitian.

BARBARA W. BRYANT

"Barb" "Babs" "Mike"

Lincoln School. Freshman Girls' Club; Girls' Club 3, 4; Orchestra 1, 2; Operetta 3, 4.

This excitable, enthusiastic bit of femininity entered M. H. S. from the Lincoln School in 1935. In a short time Barb made many friends by her happy-go-lucky spirit and contagious smile. Dancing occupies the major part of her recreation, which fact is quite evident when she is seen on the dance floor. Barb plans to enter Academic Moderne to learn the art of a mannequin.

He is one who becomes really ambitious when work is required, especially when it is required on a typewriter. Everlasting friendships are his because he is lively and because good fun can be expected from him.

CHARLES EARL BURNETT

Calvin Coolidge School.

During his four years of study Earl has taken part in no activities, but still he has made many friends. Wherever he is seen writing, it is always with pen and ink and a cash book of some description, which shows us that his main study is bookkeeping. Next fall will find him working in an office.

Four years ago a light-haired, timid young fellow appeared on the steps of M. H. S. Upon investigating, it was ascertained that the Lincoln School had sent him to gain further knowledge. "Monkey"

What was Winchester's loss was our gain, when Nancy entered M. H. S. as a demure Sophomore. While here, she did not have much time for extra activities of the school, because most of her time was taken up by the famous "Buzz Barton of Stoneham". Upon graduation, Nancy plans to launch on a business career as a bookkeeper.

JEAN ELIZABETH SHAFER

RUTH SHIRTON

"Hollywood Bound" 2; "Way Out West" 3; Orchestra 4; Band 4.

Ruthie's modest, unassuming manner has made her a general favorite with many true friends. She is reserved, yet in her own quiet way is quite accomplished. Naturally of a generous and happy nature, she takes an absorbing interest in church work. Ruthie plays the clarinet skillfully and is an ardent football and hockey fan. She plans to attend the Nazarene College next year.

MILDRED SMARDEN

"Millie" "Mimi"

Millie's ready smile has won her many friends since her entrance here from the Calvin Coolidge. She has not participated in any sports, but appreciates a good baseball or hockey game. Ken is one of our most prominent and popular students. You are likely to see him anywhere — if there are girls present. Other interests of his are sports, especially track, and acting. He has a fine personality, and is everybody's friend. I am sure that he will go a long way in life whatever path he chooses to follow.

BETTY ANN CUMMINS SMYTH

Glee Club 4; Girls' Club 3, 4; Masque and Wig 2, 3, 4, Play 4; Operetta 2, 3, 4; Swimming 2; Gym Exhibition 3.

Although Betty Ann is well known in Melrose, she is really a Malden girl at heart, as is proven by a scrapbook which has been her hobby since football became her chief interest. Whether the interest is on the game or on the players is a question, but there is no question about Puggy's personality. Here's to you, Pal!

JOHN C. SNAITH

"Johnny" "Wolf"

Lincoln School. Rifle Club 2; Swimming 2; Cheerleader 3, 4.

Johnny came to us from the Lincoln School in the year 1935. His smile and personality have won him many friends through the four years at high school. He is looking forward to his graduation present which is a trip to the World's Fair. Wherever he goes, we are sure he will succeed.

"Fred" "Freddy"

Calvin Coolidge. Cross Country 1, 2; Tennis 2; Outing Club 2, 3; Euclidean Society 2, 3; Track 1, 3, 4; Hi-Y 3, 4.

Although Fred has had an average of one major accident a year in high school, he has done fine work both in studies and sports. Fred's keen interest in his friends is responsible for his fine personality and good nature. Fred's weak spot is chemistry, and he plans to make this his life work starting at Mass. State.

PATRICIA DAWN STACK

"Pat"

Lincoln School. Masque and Wig 2, 3; Marinette Club 1; Girls' Club 2, 3, 4; Operetta 3; Band 1.

Words, words, words, a whole "Stack" of words. Pat began her high school days as one of the few girls that still had pig tails. Many of us saw her dance in the operetta last year, and all of us will see her dance her way to game in the short years to come. Then we will be able to say, "I knew her when—."

Freddy is the lad with the bright yellow hair, and the black bushy eye-brows who is the city's best "soda-jerker" and the world's loudest cheer-leader. His ambition—to be a famous engineer and a clever business man seems big for such a short fellow; but, according to him, M. I. T. comes first, and then the world has no limits.

PAUL STETSON

"Laurel"

Lincoln School.

During Laurel's four years in M. H. S. he has remained unmoved by the wiles of the fairer sex. Most of his hours outside of school are spent delivering papers in an antiquated automobile. His favorite hobby is looking for haunted houses in the backwoods. We hope these pastimes will not prevent him from going to M. I. T. and becoming an outstanding engineer.

THOMAS SULLIVAN

"Tom" "Sull" "Dinty"

St. Mary's School. Baseball 1; Football 3.

Hockey, baseball, football, and swimming have kept Tom's attention during all seasons. He is one of the most popular boys in the school, and is well-known by his broad Irish grin. Due to his smallness, he has been kept out of all sports with much contact. Tom plans to enter a Commercial School after graduation and continue his education in books and sports.

MARION H. SWANSBURG

"Swanee"

Calvin Coolidge School. Girls' Club 3, 4.

When Swanee came to M. H. S., the Calvin Coolidge School lost one of its smallest girls (4' 11 1/2") and one of its brightest heads. I am not speaking here of her intellectual qualities particularly, but of the bright color of her hair. She has made many friends here, and because her disposition usually matches her hair, she will continue doing so.

RICHARD JACKSON SYMONDS

"Dick"

Lincoln School. Band 1, 2, 3; Orchestra 1, 2, 3; Track 3, 4; Hi-Y 3, 4; Tennis 2; Outing Club 2, 3.

She has a yen for dancing and basketball, and although she is quiet, she is lots of fun and always ready to do something just for the fun of it. She is a perfect companion, as Edie Vail will tell you, for those two are inseparable. She has everything from sophistication to a sense of humor.

Fred Thompson is a likable chap, who is well known for his excellent piano playing. Fritz came to Melrose from Haverhill, and started with us as a Freshman. He enjoys golf, tennis, and riding. Johnny has been much interested in the various activities at M. H. S. proving himself to be always cheerfully willing to help his many friends and his teachers. He has worn a trail up the left aisle of the Melrose Theater for one long year assuming the pose of a courteous usher, but those best acquainted know of his desire to follow a life's work at the New England Bell Telephone Company.

LEWIS ALBERT TITCOMB

"Lou" "Louie" "Bud"

Calvin Coolidge School. Track 1, 2, 3, 4; Football 1, 4; Cross Country 2, 3; Euclidean Society 3, 4; Outing Club 2, 3, 4.

Lou entered High School, got to work, and soon had attained the reputation of being a brilliant student. Not only did he rate high in classes, but he also did well in athletics. He gained fame as a runner, and then surprised us all by being successful at football. If Lou keeps up his good work, he is bound to go far in tomorrow's business world.

LORETTA D. TOBIN

"Dean"

St. Mary's School. Masque and Wig 3, 4; Girls' Club 3, 4; Operetta Chorus 2, 3.

Dean is a girl any student would be proud to call a pal, and there are many students who do. M. H. S. has known her for four years, but that is not the last we are going to hear. She does not know in what line she wishes to continue, but from what we have seen of her she is bound to win.

DOROTHY E. TOMES

"Dot"

Lincoln School. Girls' Club 3, 4; Class Field Hockey 3, 4; Operetta 4; Euclidean Society 4.

Dot's ready smile and quick wit have made her many worthwhile friends in high school. She is fond of dancing and all out-door sports, especially skiing. She is very active in school affairs, although she spends a great deal of time in Hampstead, New Hampshire. We all remember her fine performance in several dramatic productions. June plans to make acting her life work, and will probably attend a Boston dramatic school next year.

EDITH G. VAIL

"Edie" "Gai" "Jean"

Roosevelt School. Poetry Club 2, 3; Glee Club 3; Lens and Shutter Club 4.

Edie's sparkling personality and friendliness have brought her through Melrose High with flying colors! She has a certain sweet sophistication about her which has won her many friends. Edie's fondness for French waned, and Biology took its place in her senior year; we wonder why! Bonne Chance, Edie!

CHARLES HENRY VIRGIN

"Charlie" "Mush" "Hoiman"

Calvin Coolidge School. Baseball 1; Cross Country 3, 4; Track 3, 4.

Charlie came to the M. H. S. halls of learning via the Calvin Coolidge School. His winning smile and pleasant disposition have gained Charlie many friends of both sexes. He has gained distinction by being a member of two New England Championship Cross Country teams. Charlie's scholastic abilities have been high, and he plans to pursue an engineering course at Wentworth Institute.

PHILIP L. WADLAND

"Phil"

Lincoln School. Gymnastic Team 1, 2, 3, 4.

Upon entering high school, Phil began the Commercial Accounting Course and finished in the highest division. He likes music, dancing, skating, and swimming. When you are looking for a girl with a jolly and happy-go-lucky disposition, you can always depend on Ruth. At times she may appear a bit quiet, but you find out differently when you are the unlucky victim of her many practical jokes. She hopes to receive a B. S. degree at Boston University.

LUCILLE A. WASSON

"Lucy" "Wassy" "Louie"

Girls' Club 3, 4.

Lucille came to us from Roxbury Memorial High near the end of her sophomore year. Her expressive brown eyes and her ready smile soon won her many friends among the M. H. S. students. Her dramatic ability, though unknown to many, is sure to make her outstanding.

During his years in high school Lewis has been outstanding as a track star. Through his good nature and personality, he has acquired many friends. Next fall Lew plans to attend New Hampshire State College and we all wish him the best of luck.

AMY WENTWORTH

A friendly smile, a subduing glance, a gentle hint, a firm denial, an infectious laugh, a reproving nod, energetic team play, modest self-assertion, heartening encouragement, kindly sympathy, serious endeavor, ready wit, a freshman secretary, a sophomore varsity player, a Prom committee member, an outstanding Girls' Club President;— it's a composite picture, but this mixture of humor and seriousness is really our Amy!

ELLEN WHEELER

"Lennie"

Lennie came to us in her senior year from Waltham. During the short time she has been here, she has become very popular with everyone. Lennie has proven her ability as a stenographer, and I am sure she will make her mark in the world of business. Ask Lennie how "D. P." is these days.

Her hobby is collecting souvenirs which anyone could tell since her room is "Phil"ed with them. She plans to attend Leslie School.

WILLIAM C. WIGTON

"Wimpy" "Bill"

Calvin Coolidge School. Rifle Team 1; Model Airplane Club 2.

Wimpy is one of the few fortunate fellows that has the jump on most of us. For the last school year he has been attending Hemphill Diesel Night School. As yet he does not exactly know which field of the diesel engineering he wishes to major in, but we are sure that he will succeed anywhere.

CAROLYN WILBUR

"Cal" "Carol"

Roosevelt School. Freshman Girls' Club; Junior Red Cross 2; Girls' Club 3, 4.

Cal is easy to know, her ability to be gay or serious equally well enables her to fit anywhere at anytime. The boss who hires Carolyn a few years hence, straight from Katherine Gibbs, will receive a talented secretary and a grand person.

ARTHUR T. WILLIAMS

She has great ambitions of someday being a successful social worker.

A cartoon illustration of a man with a distressed expression, sitting at a desk completely buried up to his chest in tall stacks of papers. He is wearing a white shirt and a dark tie. Above his head, the word "WHEW" is written in a stylized, slanted font, indicating a sense of exhaustion or being overwhelmed.

GIRLS' CLUB

President—AMY WENTWORTH

Vice-President—JEANNE PARANT

Secretary—RUTH PACKARD

Treasurer—JUNE PARMAN

Corresponding Secretary—RAE LARKIN

Girls' Club is about to complete its fourteenth successful year under "Mac's" leadership. It would be an impossible task to count the number of girls who have been inspired as well as entertained by Girls' Club programs.

The Program Committee under the leadership of Ethel Harden and Beatrice Flagg has made the meetings most enjoyable by their choice of speakers. Mr. Sprague, Mr. Wilder, Miss Putnam, and Mrs. Stewart of Malden were among them.

The "Kids' Party", held in October brought back the costumes, hair-does, and games of by-gone days.

One of the most entertaining meetings was the "Professor Quiz Night" in which Professor Quiz, better known as Mr. Carney, forced ten faculty members, five Hi-Y and five Girls' Club members to confess all . . . they knew.

Mr. Whalen has Girls' Club to thank for the feminine lead in "The Pirates of Penzance" because Jane Scott's singing talent was first discovered in the Girls' Club Amateur Show.

Alumnae night was proclaimed a success when sixty-eight former members appeared, proving that the ideals and purpose of Girls' Club have proved an inspiration to them through the years just as future members will be inspired to do greater things.

THE FRESHMAN GIRLS' CLUB

President—HARRIET LEIGHTON

Secretary—DORIS SMITH

Treasurer—MARJORIE BELL

The Freshman Girls' Club offers an opportunity to the incoming students to enjoy social afternoons twice a month and to become better acquainted with their class mates.

Early in the fall, under the direction of Miss Moore, amateur contests were held in the auditorium. The girls showed fine spirit and talent, and in gaiety of these meetings, all feeling of strangeness quickly disappeared.

Later in the season, Claire Condell, Nancy Taylor, and Natalie Walsh were elected to the program committee, ably headed by Emilybeth Oyster.

At this time, Miss Sacks took over the duties of Miss Moore as sponsor.

The early spring program included a fine talk by Mr. Sprague, a Valentine party in the gym, and movies of the 1938 Washington party shown and ably commented upon by Mr. McPheters. In May, the Masque and Wig presented an amusing one act play, "The Gentle Jury" and four splendid readings were given by the Speaker's Bureau. The May Dance held in the High School Gymnasium will end a very pleasant year.

MASQUE AND WIG SOCIETY

President—ANNELEA RANDALL

Vice President—BERNADETTE DiNATALE

Secretary—ALITA BOECKER

Corresponding Secretary—CARMAN WOLFF

Treasurer—JOHN TIERNEY

This year, as in years before, the upper-class dramatic society, under the supervision of Miss Kathryn L. Garden and Mr. Charles Parmiter, has made possible many hours of pleasing entertainment. The aim of the club has been to encourage its members in a desire for self-expression, to help them to develop confidence in speaking before others, and in realizing dramatic ambitions.

During the course of the year, the Society has increased its knowledge of almost every art in the field of the theatre. These have included the basic principles of make-up work, staging, costuming, property arrangement, and the all-important acting.

The two most important productions of the year were the Pageant-Play, "My Lady's Yuletide", very effectively staged Christmas entertainment, and the annual play, "Death Takes A Holiday".

Membership in the Masque and Wig Society is open to any upper-classman who expends the necessary time and energy, and who develops some skill in the work of the theatre.

MELROSE HIGH SCHOOL BAND

FRANCES D. MONT, Conductor

The Melrose High School Band under the fifth year of Miss Mont's leadership has reached a new high in membership, growing from a small group of twenty to a present seventy-two. Instrumentation has kept pace for the band now boasts a full bass section and this year purchased a glockenspiel and baritone saxophone.

The advancement reached a new point musically as well, necessitating the forming of two bands. The advanced band includes those of mature training who could not in all fairness to them, be held back to the level of the members of the regular band class.

People who have not attended the yearly band concerts may not be aware that the marching band of the football games becomes the concert band playing such varied compositions as Bach, Beethoven, Mozart, Hadley, Grainger, Ravel, Victor Herbert, Ferde Grofe, George Gershwin. The Bach Choral "Cun̄t Susser Tod", and "On The Trail" of Gofe played at last May's concert are still mentioned as highlights of excellent intonation and interpretation. The band has gone far in balance and understanding and ranks with the best of our eastern bands.

The loyalty of the band to Melrose High School can never be questioned. Their work at the Thanksgiving Day game, plowing through mud and playing with cold hands and even to the point of valves freezing shows their training to see a thing through under all circumstances. They stand ready to do their bit at assemblies and all school activities.

MELROSE HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA

FRANCES D. MONT, Conductor

The Melrose High School Orchestra is an organization of which every resident of the city may well be proud.

In the able leadership of Miss Frances D. Mont, there is evidenced a very obvious consciousness that the primary objective of every organized effort is, after all, good citizenship. Directing the orchestra too a plane, so worthy of note, Miss Mont's efforts have gone far to prove that the positive characteristics of good citizenship may be acquired in the realm of music.

The Orchestra encourages both independent and group activity. The members learn the disciplinary value of self-effacement for the good of the whole, as well as the educational value of aspiring to solo parts, the quality and execution of which are nearly, if not actually, on a professional basis.

Public appearances at various functions, both within and without the school, stimulate for perfection, develop confidence in their ability to perform, and a resultant satisfaction in achievement.

The principles, taught and learned on the orchestra stage, will be of immeasurable value on the stage of Life.

The entire school and community wish Miss Mont and her loyal group continued success.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

President—MARTHA STINGEL

Vice-President—JEAN MACPHETERS

Secretary—ESTHER BENEDICT

Treasurer—JUNE PARMAN

Sponsor—MISS BECK

The Junior Red Cross made a very good start this year under our new sponsor Miss Beck. Among our many activities have been included the planning of decorations of store windows for the annual roll call, sending Thanksgiving cards to the Rutland Veterans' Hospital, and taking boxes of candy to the Bedford Veterans' Hospital at Christmas time.

This spring Eleanor Riley and Marquita MacHugh represented the club in the annual convention at Washington.

LENS AND SHUTTER SOCIETY

President—KENNETH NICKOLLS

Vice President—ARTHUR DAVIS

Secretary-Treasurer—BARBARA LUNDSTED

Faculty Adviser—MR. WILSON

Every Monday the Lens and Shutter Society has met to do developing and printing and to discuss the photographs taken by the members. Lectures, on exposure, have been given often by members, also there have been talks on composition and the structure of cameras; and for the beginners, President Ken Nickolls has conducted classes in developing and printing. At Christmas time, many of us took advantage of our learning to make our own cards. Throughout the year we have held contests, and at time entered in a state-wide competition sponsored by the Massachusetts High School Camera Club. From all points of vantage, in the class-room, corridors and athletic field, cameras have been clicking, taking candid shots of unsuspecting seniors.

From these experiences and lectures, we all feel that we have improved our technique as candid camera artists.

NUNTIUS

Editors—BARBARA COX, OLIVE MORTENSEN

Literary Editors—CLAIRE CONDELL, JEANNE WAY

Exchange Editor—JOHN WOODLAND

Business Mgr.—PAUL PETERS

Adviser—MISS KERSHAW

NUNTIUS, the Latin paper which is edited by members of the first and second year Latin classes appears three times a year and has a circulation of about four hundred. Numerous other Latin papers representing schools in various parts of the country exchange regularly with NUNTIUS.

The purpose of the paper is to stimulate interest in Roman history, life, and customs; to relate Latin to modern times; and to make students realize that Latin is a usable and, in many respects, a living language. The paper contains articles of interest both in English and Latin, as well as editorials, news items, jokes, and puzzles.

NUNTIUS acknowledges its indebtedness to the commercial department whose co-operation makes possible its neat and attractive format.

THE POETRY CLUB

President—MARYJANE CLAFLIN

Vice President—MARITA LOWDEN

Secretary—BETSY GEDDES

Treasurer—BARBARA REYNOLDS

Sponsor—MISS PUTNAM

The membership of the Poetry Club is made up of ten girls who are interested not only in writing verses, but also in reading Poetry and in studying the lives of the poets.

At an early fall meeting, Miss Putnam gave an illustrated talk on the trip which she took to the British Isles last summer. She showed pictures of the birthplaces and homes of many great English poets and writers. At Christmas time, the members wrote original verses on cards and exchanged them with other members of the club. This spring the group bought two victrola records: one a recording of Robert P. Tristram Coffin reading three of his poems; the other of Robert Frost reading three of his New England poems.

RADIO CLUB

President—DONALD BRIDGE

Secretary-Treasurer—CARL HOLMAN

The Radio Club was formed three years ago for the purpose of bringing together the members of the school who were interested in radio, so that they might discuss their own problems, talk about current radio news, visit places of interest which are connected with radio, and gain, through actual experience, a greater knowledge of the hobby. In the course of its existence, the club has visited the transmitter at WEEI and also a television demonstration at WIXAL in Boston. A trip to a prominent radio school is being planned for this year. Often meetings are devoted entirely to general discussion. Code practice, construction, and experimentation are usually held after school.

MODEL AIRPLANE CLUB

President—WILLARD LUKIN

Vice President—GILMAN JACKSON

Secretary-Treasurer—HARVEY GARDNER

Sponsor—MR. CLOUGH

The Model Airplane Club of Melrose High was organized in 1935 by a small group of boys interested in building and flying model planes. Meetings were held, under the supervision of Mr. Clough, in the gym, shop, and classrooms, and trips to the East Boston Airport were enjoyed.

The Club has experienced a steady growth, and at the beginning of this year had nearly thirty members on the enrollment.

Flying meets are held monthly in the gym, when the planes are classified according to type, and the members compete in each class for the record of longest sustained flight.

The business meetings, held at frequent intervals, provide opportunities for instructive talks by the members, followed by discussion periods.

SPEAKERS' BUREAU

President—FRANK ROBBINS

Vice President—VIRGINIA TIBBETTS

Treasurer—JOY HANKINS

Secretary—FRANCES CARNEY

Scribe—GRACE KNIGHT

Sergeant at Arms—RAY MCINTOSH

Sponsors—MR. NEIMAN AND MISS BOHRER

Although the Speakers' Bureau is a comparatively new organization, it has found its niche in the school. One of the main purposes of the club is to furnish student speakers for the assemblies.

Among this year's interesting meetings were a symposium, "War Avoided or Averted", rousing stump speeches, and an enlivening quizz program. The climax of the year's work was the Declamation Contest. In the eliminations which were judged by Miss Kershaw, Miss McNamara, and Mr. Carney, Frank Robbins and Frances Carney won the original speech group; Martha Stingel and Joy Hankins, humorous; and Annelea Randall and Virginia Simons, dramatic. These six will give their selections during the assembly May fifth. The club hopes that the Declamation Contest has been established as one of the school's annual events.

THE OUTING CLUB

Officers: President, Richard Smith; Vice-President, Calvin Osberg; Secretary, William Abbott; Corresponding Secretary, Ada Holmes; Treasurer, Philip Paton.

From an original membership of twenty skiers and skaters, the club has grown to a membership of 120 who take part in roller and ice skating, hiking, picnics, skiing, and bicycling.

This year for the Thanksgiving Arlington vs. Melrose football game, the Outing Club held a successful dance and football rally.

An active spring program consisting of hikes, camping trips, fishing, roller-skating, bicycle trips, and a boat excursion has been planned to finish up another successful and enjoyable year for the Outing Club.

CLOAK AND PLUME SOCIETY

President—JACQUELINE WINSHIP

Vice President—MARK SHAW

Treasurer—EMILYBETH OYSTER

Secretary—CONSTANCE FELTON

At various meetings, members of the club have presented short skits and plays. Among these were two plays entitled "Cosette" and "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil." Both of these proved to be very entertaining.

The members of the club are now making plans to present a play for an audience of seventh and eighth grade pupils.

The club is under the direction of Miss Wilder and Miss McNamara.

THE IMPRINT

This June, the Imprint completes its second year of publication. Most of the seniors graduating from the staff have had the distinction of having helped bring the paper into existence and then of giving it a healthy push on its way.

The class of 12 juniors and 18 seniors, divides its efforts between normal English studies and editing. This process is sometimes awkward; with juniors studying one thing, and seniors another. Some compare it to an old-fashioned, one-room country school.

The real fun is going to press every other Thursday. An "Imprinter" works on issues which "appear on the street" a week after going to press. In case there is a shortage of material in any department, someone on the staff, Editor-in-Chief included, is in line for an assignment sheet.

EUCLIDEAN SOCIETY

President—PRISCILLA HESS

Chairman of the Program Committee—JOHN KIMBALL

Secretary—FOREST BARTER

Treasurer—CATHERINE MILLS

A small but interested group of honor students in Math and Science comprise this club. Only Juniors and Seniors belong. Educational trips are taken, this year's including one of special interest to the Hood Rubber Company. In the Statonary Period meetings, the club members solve mathematical puzzles and enjoy it.

The fundamental purpose of this club is to foster interest in Math and Science, and to keep informed of developments in these subjects. To aid its purpos, the club made available to the school the film entitled, "Geometry", and also purchased a book on Mathematics for the school library, in accrdance with the enrichment program.

HI-Y

President—ROBERT MONROE

Vice President—THOMAS MCENROE

Treasurer—FREDERICK STEARNS

Secretary—WHITCOMB WELLS

Cor. Secretary—JOHN BRIDGEWATER

As in the past, the Hi-Y Club has enjoyed another successful season. The year was inaugurated October fourth with the annual Girls' Club Hi-Y dinner. Then followed a series of, enlightening and vivid talks. Among its most prominent speakers were Dr. Edward Wilder, who gave an account of his experiences in India; Mr. Carney, whose topic was "Your Jobs"; and Mr. Ray Norris, who spoke on the "Art and Technique of Commercial Living".

The two most important evening functions of the Hi-Y were its annual dance, March 17, and the "Professor Quiz" program in which five Hi-Y members and five Girls' Club members overcame the mental onslaught prepared for them by ten of the faculty.

In behalf of the Red Cross Drive, the Hi-Y boys again helped by distributing posters to all stores and by putting up flags along Main Street.

THE GLEE CLUB

Under the direction of Mr. Whalen the Glee Club has played an important part in the musical activities of the school. In the Thanksgiving assembly the music of the Glee Club and the Chorus lent an expressive air to the ceremony. Likewise in the Christmas Assembly it added greatly to the interest in the program.

Once each week there has been instruction in reading music and in understanding its origin, famous composers, and musicians. The other periods each week have been spent in the actual singing of music.

At the present time the members are working in preparation for a Glee Club assembly to be given the twenty-sixth of May.

SKETCHING CLUB

The Sketching Club has been very recently organized at the request of several students from the Freehand Drawing Department who wish to carry on their art work in informal sketching groups out-of-doors. Melrose affords many interesting sketching possibilities and the students hope to render some of them in various mediums—principally in pencil and water-color. The more enthusiastic sketchers have turned to carpentry, made their own sketch boards of a particular pattern, and have all their equipment in readiness for the first warm day of spring.

Reflections

FOOTBALL

Co-Captains—ROGER GERRITSON, GRANT HOLT

Manager—DAVID COCKBURN

Coaches—MR. POOLE AND MR. WHALEN

This year, the football team has had a successful season with such outstanding men as "Jupe" Hallahan, Leister Johnson, and Phil Cargill in the back field; and Roger Gerritson, "Jupe" Virgin, and Bill Parsons in the line.

The Malden game was by far the best that Melrose has done in some time. The line was strong and the backs were fast; but these factors could not keep Malden from winning 21—41. Against Medford, the Melrose boys gained 14 first downs to their opponent's 9, but downs are not points and Medford won 11—9.

Spring practice shows the return of some good veterans, and appearance of a likely-looking crop of new-comers. All of which brings hope to Coaches Poole and Whalen that next year M. H. S. football will be in for a boom season.

ICE HOCKEY

Melrose finished second in the inter-scholastic hockey league—just one point away from the championship. Had it not been for the large number of injuries and ineligibilities, the championship story might have been different. As it was, the boys won six games, tied two, and lost two in the regular league competition. It is interesting to note that Melrose had the least number of goals scored on them of all the teams in the league.

There were no outstanding stars this season, many players helping to score the greatest number of goals made by any one team. "Jake" Liston and Joe Reardon were chosen for the all-scholastic team; Bud Holt, Charlie Holt, Dan Calt, and Russ Priestley made the second all-scholastic team. Other seniors who distinguished themselves on the ice were George Moulaison, Dave MacKenzie, and "Red" DeMontier.

TRACK

The track squad this spring is made up of many new boys. At the first call, fifty-six boys reported for the various events. The greatest weakness seems to be in the sprint events and quarter mile.

The leading sprint candidates seem to be Robert Spencer, Al Mayne, Vincent Dion and William Mills.

John Bridgewater, Lewis Wells and Art Galvin are standouts in middle distances, although they are developing slowly this spring.

Bill Hamlin is carrying the honors in the pole vault, John Cox in the discus, Bruce Park and Robert Brower in the high jump, and Jack Ritchie, Denny Fernald, John Hartigan and Robert Ford in the shot-put.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Captain—JOHN BRIDGEWATER

Manager—JOSEPH HEBBLETHWAITE

Coach—LEONARD CLARK

After two weeks of extensive conditioning by "Doc" Clark's four veterans, several last-year replacements, and general green-horns, the first dual meet was won against Beverly. Then followed, in quick succession, triumphs over Beverly, Woburn, Wakefield, Stoneham, Chelsea, and Winchester.

By that time the harriers were in confident spirits for the three championship races to be run in ten days. The first of these meets was the "Big Six" event at Stoneham on November 2. For the fourth successive year, the Melrose aggregation came out on top. Next came the state meet at Nickerson Field, Weston, November 5. However this race proved ill-fated for the Melrose team, for they lost by only 5 points to Brockton. After this setback, the hill and dalers entered the New England Championships at Providence, R. I., November 12, and gained revenge over Brockton by defeating them and 23 other New England schools.

TENNIS TEAM

Coach—RICHARD UDALL

The tennis team this year looks forward to a very eventful season with the return of such seasoned veterans as Bob Monroe and Walt Niles. Last year the team was very successful, winning most of its matches.

As yet the white-trousered horde has not been called out for an official practice, but at the first suitable weather, the boulevard courts will be filled with underclass men aspiring for a ranking position on the team.

Although the team faces a hard schedule, under the capable coaching of Mr. Udall, they should meet with great success in their matches.

GOLF

After winning the Middlesex Golf League in 1938 without losing a match, the Golf Team of Melrose High School looks forward to a successful season this year. Four letter men from last year's team remain with us—David Paul, Donald Kelly, John Cox, and Robert Jordan. Several boys in the Freshman and Sophomore class show promise of also becoming letter men, and with this combination, the team, this year, expects to go far and accomplish a great deal.

BASKETBALL

Captain—JOHN BRIDGEWATER

Manager—JOHN COX

Coach—MR. NEIMAN

The Melrose High School basketball team, while not very successful in the matter of wins and losses, produced some very exciting games. During the entire season Melrose was definitely out-classed, against only two teams, North Quincy and Peabody. It is interesting to note that both these teams later played in the Tech tournament. Though our position in the standing of the Greater Boston League was not very high, it will be remembered that we were nosed out by not more than three points in any game.

The team has chosen Lawrence Zurbach and Richard Else as co-captains for next year. Although several members of the team are graduating, the Junior and Sophomore lines give good indication for a successful year.

THE RIFLE CLUB

President—EVERETT GRAHAM

Vice President—EDWIN RUMRILL

Secretary—ROBERT CALDER

Range Officer—ORIN SMITH

This year the Rifle Club has been kept busy by the schedule of matches that have been shot. These include: two matches with Malden, two matches with Haverhill, two matches with Brockton, and postal matches with Norwood Academy and the Portland Y. M. C. A. In addition, the Club participated in the first series of bi-weekly postal matches sponsored by the National Rifle Association.

The Club has the use of two ranges, the most used one being the range in the Legion Bungalow. The other range is the fine Fish and Game Club range on the Mount Hood Reservation. The Rifle Club is fortunate, indeed, to have the use of these two ranges, as it has a big advantage over other clubs as there is ample opportunity for outdoor shooting at all ranges.

In the future, the Club and team should progress rapidly as many of the better shots are not graduating this year.

BOYS' SWIMMING CLUB

The boys' swimming club was organized, under the direction of Mr. Udall, for the purpose of improving swimming. After an instruction and training period of two months, the members of the club took part in three dual swimming meets as an independent Y. M. C. A. team. The team won easily from Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. in the first meet, and then, weakened by sickness, lost close meets to the Lowell Y. M. C. A. and Huntington School.

Members of the club included:

Seniors—Kenneth Hall and John Abbott

Juniors—Robert Whitman, Edward Lacey, and Willard Luken

Sophomores—Owen Bailey, John Cain, and William Hamlin

Freshmen—Stanley Battles, Robert Colcord, and Jack Towle

Parker Greenlaw acted as business manager.

BASEBALL

GYMNASTICS CLUB

A small organization has been formed in this year's extra curricula activities. We are becoming more acutely aware that leisure time may be enjoyably spent by engaging in Physical Education. Boys that wish to further their ability or interest in physical work have joined this group, and under the able guidance of Mr. Clark, boys physical instructor, hope to become advanced in gymnastics.

Mr. Clark has taught us exercises on the mats, parallel bars, rings and horizontal bar. Much of the work done, does not require supreme strength by any means but it does require rhythm, timing, grace, and coordination. That is the chief aim of this small organization.

GIRLS' RIDING CLUB

This year the Girls' Riding Club got off to a bad start. Because of the hurricane damage in the Fells, there was no autumn riding. Nevertheless, the girls started anew this spring, and, under the able supervision of Mr. Ben Crooker of the Melrose Riding School, many beginners learned the fundamentals of horseback riding. We feel that we are very fortunate to have the excellent instruction and fine horses which we get at the Melrose Riding School.

GIRLS' SWIMMING

There are a large number of girls this year taking swimming, diving, and Senior and Junior Life-Saving. Life-Saving has been introduced this year.

The Life-Saving groups have finished their course and there are four receiving their Junior and two receiving their Senior Life Saving certificates.

The beginners' class has been working hard to improve their swimming, to learn how to dive. In this group there are about fifteen girls, and they all have showed great improvements.

The advanced class has been working for speed and practicing racing dives and turns for the interclass and class meets.

Much of the success of these swimmers belongs to Miss Kendall whose constant help and willing co-operation has encouraged us to go on.

FIELD HOCKEY

Captain—RAE LARKIN

Manager—ANNELEA RANDALL

Coach—MARY T. SARGENT

This year there was a very large enthusiastic turnout for the Girls' Hockey Team. Every night we could see the girls out on the athletic field practicing. From this large group of girls, Miss Sargent picked the Varsity squad and the second team, both of which proved to be quite successful.

The girls had Lexington, Winthrop, Malden, Swampscott, Winchester, Arlington, and Stoneham for opponents. The first team won five of the games and lost two. The second team won six and lost one.

The second team showed itself up in grand style which in itself is most promising for next year, some of the prospects being: Ruth Kiley, Shirley Moore, Adelaide DePetro, Ruth York, and Virginia Tibbetts.

BASKETBALL

Captain—BARBARA LUNDSTED

Manager—HELEN KILEY

Coach—MARY T. SARGENT

Over one-half of the girls in the High School participated in basketball this year. Room 208B won the home room tournament. The interclass series followed with the seniors coming out on top. These class teams played Reading, Swampscott, and Winchester taking all of the games from Swampscott and all but one from Reading and Winchester. The outstanding players were chosen from these teams to make up the varsity squad. They did not win all of their games, but they showed good sportsmanship. Barbara Lundsted was the only letter girl from last year. The second team won all except two games.

GIRLS' TENNIS

The Girls of the school had a fall tennis tournament which helped in choosing the tennis list for the spring.

Tennis is a sport that encourages the girls to be out in the air in the spring and fall. Every year there is a Play Day at Winchester. This year the Melrose High School Girls' Tennis Team has been invited to attend. This is quite an honor for us as the other teams attending are from private schools.

This fall the Freshmen had two tournaments which were won by Francis Nicholls and Betty Surbeck. The doubles tournament was won by Jacqueline Smith and Francis Nicholls. The Sophomore doubles tournament was won by Joanne and Nancy Jones. The Sophomore singles was won by Caroline Lentillon; the Juniors singles by Maureen MacHugh; and the Senior singles by Barbara Meharg.

This spring we are looking for more and better tennis players to turn out for this sport.

GIRLS' BOWLING

Bowling for girls of all classes, which has entered into the high school only recently, has proved a success as a major sport. The girls of all classes have reported weekly on their respective days, at the Highlands Club and shown great skill, even to winning the ten free strings. The outstanding bowlers have been June Parman, Eleanor Haley, Ruth York, Verna Kinniston, Gloria Pendleton, and Jean MacDonald.

The results of tournament averages were: Sophomore $56\frac{1}{2}$, Freshmen (A) $69\frac{1}{2}$, Freshmen (B) $69\frac{1}{2}$, and Seniors at top with 72.

INTRA-MURAL SPORTS

Our intra-mural program is the backbone of our girls' athletics. It is from these home room and class games that varsity material is chosen. There is a team for every girl and a wide variety of sports to choose from. In the fall we have hockey, tennis, and riding. During the winter months we have basketball, volley ball, bowling, track, gym, and swimming. The spring season finds us busy with baseball, riding, tennis, and we hope to have archery. Hundreds of girls play on their home room and class teams, and enjoy the privileges of the riding, bowling, and swimming clubs. We hope that some day every girl in school will find a sport she is interested in.

GIRLS' LEAGUE OF ATHLETICS

Officers: RUTH KILEY, BARBARA LUNDSTED

RAE LARKIN, MARY DeCOSTE

The Girls' League of Athletics was organized in 1937, and has pregressed with rapid strides. Its purpose is the promotion of girls athletics, and the realization of the highest ideals of good sportsmanship.

The organization, which is composed of the majority of the girls in the school, as sponsored many new activities for girls. Among the sports which girls now enjoy are archery, golf, bowling, and swimming.

GIRLS' BASEBALL

After a long drawn out winter it will indeed be a pleasure to see the girls out on the diamond again.

Due to the lack of baseball enthusiasm in the surrounding towns, Melrose girls did not have a varsity team last year. However, this year we are happy to know that we will have a varsity team and will play Lexington, Winchester, Arlington, and Woburn.

Some of the most promising prospects for the team are: K. Wiswill, R. York, M. MacLadan, R. Kiley, A. DePetro, N. Weeks, J. Parman, R. Larkin, T. Doyle, and M. Harvey.

Considering the fact that about half of the student body of girls are playing baseball during their gym periods, and every home room will have a team playing S period; we should have a very successful season.

MARSHAL'S ADDRESS

Good afternoon Parents, Teachers and Friends.
May I extend to you the cordial welcome of the class of 1939.

Four years ago this thrilling occasion seemed very far away, but at last it has arrived. With this in mind we cannot help but feel the sincerest appreciation toward our Mothers and Fathers who have made so many sacrifices for us, and toward our teachers who have patiently guided us through four years of education.

As it is a great milestone in all our young lives, it is our wish that you join us here as we present to you the most entertaining side of our school life. We hope that this program will leave you with many pleasing remembrances of the class of 1939.

ROBERT S. SPENCER

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1939

THOMAS McENROE

(Appears on stage dressed in ministerial garb, bearing scripture)

Our lesson for today is in the Second Volume of the Book M. H. S., Chapters three through seven, inclusive.

And it came to pass, two years after the completion of the stone temple of knowledge, or in the year one thousand-nine hundred-thirty five, Anno Domini, a certain group of seekers of learning, some three hundred forty strong, entered into the bondage of the masters of the Temple for four years.

And these promised children soon lost their strangeness and became accustomed to the quickness of life, and hardness of task in their new home.

And it was that a certain small group of them, who calleth themselves the Cloak and Plume society, choseth John Tierney as their chieftain and Carman Wolff as their next in command.

Also in the Freshman Girls' Club, Elisabeth Campbell was made chieftess, with Marieta Lowden her aide. And lo, a certain teacher, named Mac, gathered round about him a select group of athletes to partake, violently, of a sport, football by name. The team did loseth all manner of contests, from the first unto the last.

* * * *

And in the following year, this same group of chosen people became Soph'omores, though they did yet remain in bondage. And they did appoint Robert Monore to be their leader; and John Bridgewater to be his first assistant, and Evelyn Smith to be their scribe, and Elisabeth Campbell to be their money tender.

And it was now permitted to the entire generation to become a follower of any tribe they were wont to. Four of the rank were chosen officials of their tribe; Stuart Hutton became scribe of Hi-Y; Maryjane Claflin was scribe of the Poetry Club; Robert Spencer was annointed scribe of the Junior Red Cross; and Carman Wolff was made money keeper of the Writers' Club. Ralph McLain, and Marguerite Aggar and Marieta Lowden and Maryjane Claflin didst wield mighty pens on the famous Roman parchment, the Nuntius.

And it was, that in showing of the Masque and Wig's "Phillip Goes Forth," Annelea Randall did play a large part therein. In the musical psalm, "Hollywood Bound", John Cox and Ralph McLain didst revert to heathens, playing Chinese men, and Cecil Farnsworth did shout forth a double role, playing two men at once.

And behold, great honors were bestowed upon Roger Gerritson and Grant Holt for their prowess upon the field of football and to William Liston and David MacKenzie went laurel wreaths for their endeavors in skimming the icy rink.

* * * *

And in the process of time the chosen ones were blessed with many and great positions of high rank. There was much rejoicing when Robert Monroe was chosen once again to be the leader of this mighty tribe; John Bridgewater once more, was first assistant; likewise Elisabeth Campbell another year didst tend the moneys; and Helen Kiley was made keeper of the records.

The football team did enjoy a season unmarred by loss. And on that victorious team which did really beat Malden and Arlington were the mighty gladiators, William Hallahan, and George Mouaison, and Roger Gerritson and John Ball, and Grant Holt and Leonard Bryant, and Herbert DeMontier.

A Washington pilgrimage was made by eighty in number, who, desiring knowledge and joy did depart from their native Melrose to seeth the Capitol of their entire country. The journey was made by water and land, and the wildness of the great Atlantic Sea didst cause consternation and upheavals amongst the good people of our lot.

And in the Masque and Wig play, "I'll Leave it to You," Annelea Randall and June Torrey, and Norma Ahearn and Carman Wolff all didst play important roles. And with bellowing and cavorting, the Juniors didst overrun the operetta, "Way Out West," chief amongst them being Martha Stingel and Robert Spencer and Mary Jane Claflin and Joy Hankins and John Cox.

Amidst clashing of symbals and blowing of tubas there was a mighty celebration where were gathered a great company who didst dance and make merry, for this was the Junior Prom of great renown.

* * * *

And so it came to pass that the great people passed into the fourth and final stage of their deliverance from oppression and diverse afflictions.

Ballots were cast for leaders and thus Robert Spencer became the head; and John Bridgewater followed close behind; and Elisabeth Campbell was again the keeper of the treasury and Grant Holt was appointed scribe.

And even so the smaller groups didst have all Seniors as chiefs — Annelea Randall of the Masque and Wig, and Martha Stingel of the Junior Red Cross, and Amy Wentworth of the Girls' Club, and Robert Monroe of the Hi-Y, and Priscilla Hess of the Euclidean Society, and Mary Jane Claflin of the Poetry Club, and Everett Graham of the Rifle Club, and Frank Robbins of the Speakers' Bureau, and Thomas McEnroe of the Imprint, and Richard Smith of the Outing Club.

But the players at games also didst records make. Of the women players, in hockey the foremost of them were Rae Larkin and Elisabeth Campbell, and Gwendolyn DeFreitas and Frances Doyle, and Helen Kiley and Phyllis Allen and Anne Faden, and Jean Hickey and Marilyn Woodman, and Jeanne Parant, and they did win all contests but one. And in basketball, the women did win five of their eight games.

And the men did excell at running across the land. Yea, they did come off victors at all dual meets and did even receive the New England title. And there were among them John Bridgewater and Louis Wells, and Arthur Galvin and James Schaefer.

And in the sixth month of the fourth year, the Masque and Wig brought forth a play, "Death Takes a Holiday", wherein many Seniors brought honor to themselves and to their people. And in the musical jubilee "Pirates of Penzance", Jane Scott didst cover herself with glory.

And the Log, wherein is set forth the history and doctrines of the Class of 1939, was under the leadership of John Kimball as editor and Charles Kane, chief of affairs.

And as May drew to a close, the mighty and famous Imprint didst mark off its second year of colorful life.

Now, therefore, hearken. Though great had been the wailing and the beating upon the breasts of these chosen people during their four years of sojourn in the temple, thanks were deep in their hearts to the prophets who had led them through the wilderness into the promised land.

Here endeth the reading of the lesson. Selah.

STATISTICS OF THE CLASS OF 1939

CHARLES KANE

Parents and friends, as you see, I have been called in as a member of the "Fax and Figures Accounting Company" to check over the books and accounts of the class of 1939. I find these books are all in good order, and I will therefore recount to you some of the facts contained in them so that you may judge for yourselves the wisdom of the choice which our class has made.

First of all, let us present a cross section of our group. Their total years would carry us far beyond even the time of Buck Rogers—way off to somewhere in the seventy-eighth century; their weight, even excluding Rog Gerritson would amount to over 21 tons, and if they were laid end to end it would take our star half-miler, Johnny Bridgewater, about a minute and ten seconds to run the distance. Their favorite sport is swimming and their favorite study, biology.

Next we have the ever present but never seen member of the class, "Mr. Average", or, if you prefer, our average individual. He weighs one hundred and thirty pounds, stands five feet six inches tall and wears a size seven and a half shoe. He prefers brunettes, by the way, quite contrary to the saying that, "Gentlemen prefer blondes."

This class, like all other graduating classes, has chosen its various outstanding personalities, its athletes, bluffers, saints, blushers, flirts, and many more notables. If these people who have been selected by their classmates for these places of honor, will please rise when their names are mentioned, it will give our visitors an opportunity to judge for themselves how accurately the class has chosen.

For our first celebrity let us turn to athletics, for sports play a great part in the life of any high school. Our most athletic boy is John Bridgewater, who well deserves this honor since; besides being an outstanding member of the track and baseball teams, he has captained both the cross country and the basketball team.

Our outstanding girl athlete is "Tut" Doyle, whose powers on the basketball court, baseball diamond, and hockey field have won her a permanent niche in our hall of fame.

Bob Spencer and Amy Wentworth are our most popular boy and girl. Bob, also our class president, is well known, too, for his ability as an actor, and is even more noted for his witticisms. Amy's pleasing personality and cheerful disposition, no doubt, won her this honor, because she is also our best-natured girl. Don Kelley, by the way, without opposition, takes the honors for best-natured boy.

I'm sure that you'll all agree on our choice of Bette Gould as our best looking girl; that is, all except, maybe, Hank Pearl; for, you see, even though he is the class genius, he is noted for his hatred of woman-kind in general.

Joe Reardon is our most handsome specimen of manhood as well as most noted for his fine work on the ball field. However, if during elections one ballot was cast without Joe's name on it, it might possibly have been cast by Dotty Nash, for she, although she is a staunch supporter of all our male athletic events, is our class man-hater.

Al Mayne and Barb Bryant are our best dancers. Al had better take good care of his dancing partner for Barb is also noted for her flirtations. This perfection in dancing has been attained, no doubt, by dancing to the tunes of "Artie Shaw", the favorite orchestra of our class.

I think that in mentioning Bob Spencer as class actor I neglected to speak of our class actress, Annelea Randall, whose brilliant performances have insured the success of our dramatic productions. Speaking of acting, we have another group of students who have done their acting on their own initiative. The most conspicuous in this group is Herb DeMontier. However, in all fairness to Herb we must say that his baseball batting average is certainly no bluff. On the other end of the scale we have Harry Briggs, whose efforts at fooling others have not had such favorable results. It was a close race though, and even if Harry did fall to the level of least successful bluffer, he still gets along pretty well. There is one type of actor left, the exaggerator, and those who know him need not be informed about Johnny Snaith's ability to tell "whoppers".

Of course, in the midst of these lighter types of students we do have those who take their work seriously. The most studious of these is Claire Connorton who has distinguished herself throughout her school days by fine marks and genuine application to her studies. For these years of hard work, Claire has won the honor part of essayist at graduation. Our valedictorian and the one most likely to succeed is Maryjane Claflin. For four years she has led her class in scholastic attainment, all her marks except two having been A's, and, besides, she has taken part in many extra curricula activities. Our second ranking honor pupil is Ralph McLain, our salutatorian. Throughout the year Ralph and Mr. Battles have been struggling through algebraic problems which were entirely unintelligible to every one else.

However, this is a time for humor so let's not dwell too long on the heavier things. If you folks should happen to hear any infectious laughter ringing through the corridors of M. H. S., it can probably be traced to Helen Kiley. Her giggling is proverbial.

A lad whose cheeks are quite apt to assume a distinctly red color whenever his name is mentioned is Warren Roukes. In fact, if you'll look real hard, folks, you can probably pick out Warren's flaming countenance.

While we're on the subject of shyness I'd like to introduce to you Thelma Etsell and Charles Glover; that is, if they haven't already left in embarrassment. The proverbial violet has nothing on them.

Another of our famous men is Dick Smith. Dick is our class artist, in fact

Dick feels it his duty to win poster prizes, which he does with uncanny regularity. Dick is also an accomplished skier as those who have tried to imitate his feats have no doubt discovered.

Next we have our class saint, Ellinor Benedict. However, Ellinor's saintliness is overshadowed by her outstanding ability as a cellist.

At the other extreme, we have John Reece whose saintliness might be questioned, but whose popularity with the fair sex is recognized by all.

If we may introduce a little touch of originality, we call upon Marion Kingston. As a result of her success in creating ideas and exercising imagination, she has become our class poet.

All of our celebrities so far have been single individuals; but we do have two members of our class who, as far as we can judge, really possess a joint personality, for they are never seen except together. I refer to our class pals, Priscilla Wiggin and Ruth Nesmith.

To lend dignity to our class we have Carolyn Longshore. However, we've been told on good authority that, with the proper encouragement, Carolyn will play her part in any prank.

No doubt many of you have heard of our class' famous songstress, Jane Scott, whose golden voice assured the distinctive success of our operetta this year.

Another type of musician is our historian and class swing fan, Tom McEnroe. Although Tom doesn't do any public work, he is said to be a drummer of no mean ability.

Our most fastidious member is Dick Hatch. Never let it be said that Dick has ever entered the portals of Melrose High without a perfect crease in his pants and a dazzling shine on his shoes.

Of course, it would be impossible to give all the interesting facts about the members of this illustrious class, for time will not permit. However, I hope that by introducing these few—pardon the interruption but I have just discovered a man who slunk into the last row after I began speaking. I mean Tom Sullivan. Throughout the year, Mr. Wilder has threatened and pleaded with Tom to move just a little faster but to no avail; Tom is still the least often on time.

I hope that by introducing these few members we have given you, at least, a partial picture of the class of 1939, Melrose High School, a class not only destined to enjoy life to its fullest extent, but also to achieve objectives, worthy and honorable.

I thank you.

PROPHECY

AMY WENTWORTH

I am still rubbing my eyes! Such magnificence, such lighting effects! such gorgeous buildings! such a riot of color! such a display of architectural and landscape artistry! What size to dwarf you! what sights to dazzle you! what noise to deafen you! Everything is super-super and words are but empty symbols to tell the wonder of it all! Of course, you know that I am talking of the great World's Fair in New York from which I have just this moment returned.

One experience which I had will interest you especially. It was my visit to the "Futurarium", that marvel of auditory and visual progress. It was all so weird that I am still a little dazed! The building itself was a massive and beautiful affair, and as I stepped inside, I felt as though I had passed into another world entirely. A very efficient little person asked me what I wanted to see. My immediate answer was, "The Class of 1939 Melrose High School in the Year 1959." She pressed some buttons and my heart took leaps in anticipation of what was coming. An attendant came in and said, "As I am aware of the decided propensity of the Class of 1939 for leisure, you may sit in this red leather chair during the review. The chair itself began to move, and I soon found myself in utter darkness.

Just as the objects of the world take shape as night departs and with the rising sun are clearly seen, so now out of the darkness there gradually appeared, dimly, at first, and then with perfect clearness, a newspaper office. As the time of the deadline was close at hand, everyone was in a rush, but I did see bevy of copy-readers, and typists. Among the copy-readers were Irma Wrenn, Betty Cloues, and Helena Donahue. Lillian Johnson and Helen Flanagan were typing, while Barbara Maddison, true to form, was just dashing in with the story on a late society event from London. Carolyn Longshore and Marge Karnheim had just had a hunting party (don't misinterpret me) for the Duchess of Worcester, Ann Faden, and some of her friends, the Countess of Derbyshire, Helen Parlee, the Countess of Essex, Nancy Sellon, and the Duchess of Ipswich, Annelea Randall. Fred Spollett, George Mann, and Kenny Hall were discussing possibilities for a feature when George Robinson came in with a last minute scoop on the stratospheric flight of Tom McEnroe and Ken Nicholls. Tom had taken the flight at night to verify his previous theory that the planets were inhabited, and ad taken Ken along to take pictures as proof. Over in one corner of the office, absolutely unaware of the commotion, were Frank Eumont and Betty Campbell. Frank was preparing his "Advice to the Lovelorn" column, while Betty worked on her poetry corner. At this point, there entered a delegation from the "Spinster Home" composed of Elinor Knight, Phylis Allen, Martha Stingel, Barbara Bryant, and Pat Hatch on a conducted tour of the establishment. Their guide, by the way, was none other than John Tierney! Arthur Galvin, an associate editor was telling the girls that the office was a virtual stamping ground for the '39 graduates with Harold Wyeth as business manager, Jesse Materese controlling circulation and Marie Casey, Pat Stack, and Lois Schofield as his helpers.

This room faded from view, and slowly a new scene came into relief, illuminated before my eyes. It was a drug store run by John Curry and Stuart Hutton. Now here is a surprise—behind the counter were Laurence Scaboria and William Wigton employed as soda-jerkers. Frank Robbins came in, accompanied by Ethel Harden and Charlie Kane, the directors of a kindergarten known as “The Little Red School for Rolly Rogues.” In the course of the conversation, Frank told them that he was president of the city’s trust company, and Lewis Pickett, Phil Wardland, and Harold Craigie were cashiers. Then in sauntered Harry Briggs, no busier than ever, and when someone asked him what his occupation was, he drawled out, “I’m still resting from my strenuous life in Melrose High School!” He was full of news, however, and said that Dick Hatch was the owner of the “Here’s How to Say It” florist shop. Dick had employed such able help as Calvin Osberg, Don Kelley, Paul Whitney, Don Watters, and Art Williams. He also said that Jimmy Gall and Walter Mill’s had a duck farm and had Norma Ahearn, Betty Carr, and Margaret Holden working for them.

The scene then changed, and I found myself looking onto an athletic field over whose gate was blazoned “Championship Field of the Faultless City.” I immediately knew that many a Melroseite must have gravitated here. Apparently there was a great mass meeting going on at which the mayor, Bob Spencer, was giving the address of the afternoon while Bob Monroe, the city’s “Grover Whalen” greeted the visitors who had come to see the awards given to the greatest champions of all time. First came “Jupe” Hallahan receiving a medal for his nine day bicycle race, then Artie Sheridan and Lewis Wells for their double jumping-rope achievement. There were others, but last of all came the recently crowned roller skate kings, Roger Gerritson, “Sonny” Concannon, and Joe Hebblethwaite; Jeanne Parant was crowned queen of the game of Russian Aggies, more familiarly known as marbles. She had defeated such great players as Ruth Shirton, Herby Gray, and Ruth Washburn. In the midst of the ceremonies, an airplane landed, piloted by Don Boyd and Norman Grant. They had come from the far north just in time to bring news that Phyllis Young, Madeleine Oliver, Maryjane Claflin, and Marion Kingston had been chosen as the glamour girls of an Alaskan tribe, and that Bea Flagg and John Kimball had been honored for their exploits in seal hunting.

Back of the athletic field could be seen on the first tee-off of the golf course, designed by Henry Pearl, a new telescope of his own invention. These telescopes on each tee-off had brought great advances in golf, and among the star players, it seemed, were Woodbury Day, Forrest Barter, Jean Shafer, and Dottie Nash.

Again a fading and relighting; I was looking on a mid-city scene in what appeared to be a great metropolis. A bus driven by John Ball stopped and Jane Scott alighted with a suitcase. She was a door-to-door saleswoman for the “Peaches and Cream Beauty Lotion Company” owned by Johnny Bridgewater. Under Jane’s management were Marieta Lowden, Joy Hankins, and Pip Hess, and she was giving them directions for the day’s work. Across the way, there were dazzling signs on the Opera House advertising the coming opera in which Carman Wolff was to be the “Prima Donna.” In her supporting cast were the fine voices of Dick Livermore, Alice Hughes, Priscilla Sears, Hugh McFarlane, Dotty Burnham, and June Parman. Marilyn Woodman, Elinor Benedict, and Murilyn Holland were in the orchestra composed entirely of lyres and directed by Bob Carter. Sandy Moran was financing the performance.

A flash—and a Y. M. C. A. stood before me. Kenny Smith, the big, burly physical-ed instructor, was entering the building with Dick Brown who was secretary of the “Y.” They were discussing the recently opened art studio of Marguerite Agar, Bea Livingstone, Dick Smith, and John Cunningham who had been commissioned by the government to do some surrealistic paintings of bathing beauties.

My next vision came slowly, but when it appeared in full it was overwhelming. It seemed to be a large arena where rehearsals were in process for the “Follies of 1959.” My suspicion of Johnny Reece’s weakness for the stronger sex was confirmed when I saw him directing a chorus of girls in a dance routine prepared by Eileen Walsh. In the chorus I could distinguish “Tut” Doyle, Esther Benedict, Beverly Bruce, Ruth Nesmith, Priscilla Wiggins, Evelyn Scarborough, Bernadette DiNatale and Gwen DeFreitas. A male chorus was in rehearsal under Warren Roukes’s direction. Imagine the unsuspected talent which lay hidden in our class! The chorus consisted of George Moulaison, better known as “Feet”, Kayo Mullen, Joe Cairns, Bill Paganucci, Thomas Sullivan, Art Allard and Dave Cockburn, those two proverbial “jitterbugs”, and Cecil Farnsworth. A daring act on the flying trapeze was being executed by Barb Lundsted, Virginia Kennistown, Phil Patton, and Ralph McLain. There were tumbling acts by Edith Vail, June Lander, Barbara Bolton, Jean Hickey, Betty Ann Smyth, and Virginia Hosmer. “Ginny” Albee who always harbored a secret desire for an all-girl orchestra now had satisfied her craving by producing the next best thing, a hot jazz band with Eugene Mooers, Martha Parker, Dick Symonds, Parker Greenlaw, and Burt Greene among its personnel. Oh yes! I must not forget Charles Virgin, Lewis Titcomb, Albert Woods, and “Diz” Farrahar who were doing daring bare-back riding feats.

As the following scene appeared, I thought I could discern the sound of tomtoms. Yes! it was on a South Sea Island, a wonderful place for people who liked the leisurely life, and there was quite a colony of our class there! Some had grown a little weary of complete inactivity: John Snaith and Water Niles had become snake-charmers; Grant Holt, John Cox, and Lewis English had gone in for rhinoceros hunting. Under a tree, some distance from the thatched roof huts, were Dave McKenzie and Fred Thompson, would-be-monkey-trainers, coaxing a little monkey who was throwing coconuts at them to come down and play with them. A moment later and Jeanne Greene, Evelyn Smith, Alita Boecker, and Bette Gould came riding by on elephants. Following them were Helen Kiley and Rae Larkin on laughing hyenas. I soon learned that the king of the jungle haunt was “Red” DeMontier, and his first lieutenant was Joe Reardon. I had noticed a rather pretentious little hut among the rest, but I little suspected what a glimpse of its interior would reveal. Could I believe my eyes? Yes, it was a little church, and the minister, believe it or not, was Dave Wardwell. He was holding a meeting of his home missionaries who devoted themselves mostly to Sunday school teaching, Margery Derby, Shirley Clark, Bicky Grant, Ruth Packard, Wallace Dunningham and Lennie Bryant, and his foreign missionaries, Er- land Teschek, and Walter Dickinson who had come in from their stations on other islands to report their success in civilizing the people.

No other scene followed this and I knew that my allotted time was spent. It was just as well; I could not have stood many more such shocks! As mysteriously as I had been introduced, I was now gently withdrawn from my oracular auditorium, and very soon I found myself being firmly but politely shown the door! You'll agree that it was a wonderful experience and now all you have to do is fulfill your destiny!

PRESENTATIONS

JUNE TORREY

(Dressed as Peter Pan)

I live in sunny Neverland
In a realm beyond the sea;
There's not a single schoolroom there
And life is glad and free.

I used to go to school with you
Years and years ago;
You did not see me very long,
A couple of weeks or so.

The teacher always said to me
"Peter, do your work this way;
If you're ever going to be a man
Do your homework every day."

One day I wrote a little note,
"I don't want to be a man,
I'm going away to Neverland
Goodbye—Peter Pan."

So, I never grew up like you,
I live in eternal spring;
I see the world through eyes of youth
With fun in everything.

But now upon your Class Day
I have come back again
To give away some presents
And to peep at the world of men.

ROBERT SPENCER (cap and bells)

Besides being a swell President,
You're always ready with a gag;
This cap and bells will mark you
As the popular class wag.

HELEN KILEY (bottle of pills)

I've a sure cure for the giggles;
Take one pill after meals.
They're guaranteed to abolish
All your titters and squeals.

WALTER DICKINSON (dust pan and brush)
When dishes fall and crash to bits,
Walter comes on the run;
This pan and brush should be your badge
When lunchroom days are done.

JANE SCOTT (phonograph)
Your singing in our pirate's show
Was far above the grade;
Will you take this phonograph
To play the records you have made?

NELSON MORAN (flea powder)
Sandy, you have a pair of shoes
Made of fur, believe it or not;
So this can of flea powder
I'm sure will help a lot.

JOHN AND WILLIAM ABBOTT (cards)
Which is John and which is Bill?
No one knows the answer.
We give these cards in hope they'll aid
Many a casual glancer.

MARYLYN WOODMAN (gas station)
In case your Ford gets stranded,
To keep your luck still up,
Just take along this gas tank,
And don't forget—"Phil-up".

ARTHUR ALLARD, DAVID COCKBURN, WOODBURY DAY (socks)
You boys are known about the school
For wearing socks so bright and gay;
So here's a pair for each of you
To add a bit to your display.

EVELYN SMITH (joke book)
Evelyn, you're always telling
A joke in every nook,
But when the quota is exhausted,
I hope you'll use this book.

LILLIAN JOHNSON (typewriter)
I hear you're the first to get a job.
Congratulations, Lil
This little typewriter here
Will increase your typing skill.

ROBERT MONROE (tennis racket)
Before us stands the tennis star;
Love is not his aim;
This racket we present to you
To help you win the game.

MARY HARNEY (dagger)

"Is this a dagger I see before me?"
From Macbeth, Mary quotes day and night;
So here's a real dagger for you.
Better keep it out of sight.

WARREN ROUKES (rouge)

A violet grows to blush unseen
Not so with Warren Roukes
So here's some rouge we hope you'll use
To keep your "school boy" looks.

VIRGINIA KENISTON, VIRGINIA KENNISTON (cards with N's)

One "n" for this Virginia,
And a double "n" for you,
To help us tell you two apart,
We'll present an "n" or two.

GEORGE FARRAHAR (car)

Dizzy Dean is king of baseball,
But the dizziest boy we've seen,
Is George who rides about the city
In his rickety limousine.

BETTY CAMPBELL (gun)

A G-man catches gangsters;
His aim is sure and true,
But beware of a cute G-woman
When Betty points at you.

JOE HEBBLETHWAITE (roses)

You have a pretty red rose in your locker,
But its aroma has faded away,
And so, as a class we present you
With a bunch that smells better, we'll say.

ELINOR KNIGHT (packages of dates)

Elinor, you have a way with you
For attracting the boys of '39;
Night after night you get those dates;
So here's a package to extend the line.

KENNETH NICKOLLS (roller skates)

The roaming photographer is your name,
But a better idea have we;
Just jump upon these roller skates,
And the "rolling" photographer you will be.

MARTHA STINGEL (fashion sheet)

Martha, you come to school
With clothes so cute and sweet,
You look as though you just stepped out
Of this latest fashion sheet.

DONALD KELLY (bottle)

They give milk to babies to make them good,
To make their faces smile;
This will enlarge your usual grin
To one we can see a mile.

CLAIRE CONNORTON, DOROTHY NASH (megaphones)

Claire and Dot make up our cheers
Without regard to reason;
Here's a pair of megaphones
To use next football season.

HERBERT CHAFFEE (smiling mask)

Every time one looks at Bud
A smile is on his face;
We hope he'll never lose it,
But here's a smiling mask—in case.

BETTY GOULD (cane)

Although just now you're pretty nimble
And walking is no strain,
You never know what age will do;
You'd better have this "Kane."

JOHN REECE (lady doll)

John, you manage with your graces
To win the ladies one and all,
But if perchance you lose your charms,
Be consoled with this lady doll.

BEATRICE FLAGG (sign—"Men not wanted")

Bea's always saying that she's off men
Forever and a day,
But plenty are always seen about.
Use this sign to scare them away.

CALVIN OSBERG (picture of moon)

In the spring, this young man's fancy
Turns to thoughts of lovely "June,"
Of swimming, fishing, in the evening
Dreaming 'neath the lover's moon.

MARGUERITE AGAR, RICHARD SMITH (etching)

You two are masters of the Arts
In painting and in sketching;
To inspire you on to greater heights
We give you each an etching.

CAROLYN LONGSHORE (picture)

It's a long walk when the shore is long
You ought to make it shorter,
The best suggestion we can make
Is this "bridge" over the "water."

HENRY PEARL (ticket)

As the genius and wizard of this model class,
We hereby present you a ticket to Mars.
Einstein will go too if you urge him a bit;
The tour is extensive with calls at all stars.

MARION KINGSTON (caterpillar in a cage)

We're sure that at some future time
You'll write a movie thriller;
And in the cast as big as life
Will be Katie Caterpillar.

Poor Katie on your Class Day
Was awfully sad and blue,
And so we fixed her up a cage
So she could sit with you.

WALTER NILES (clothes pins)

We note that when you sit in class,
You're very prone to mutter;
We think your mouth should be equipped
With clothes pins for a shutter.

RUTH NESMITH, PRISCILLA WIGGIN (caps)

Seeing you are the class pals
You ought to dress alike;
So I have two hats for you
One that's red and one that's white.

JUNE PARMAN, RAE LARKIN, FRANCES DOYLE (banner)

This is our athletic trio;
They excel in every game.
Take these banners with you
When you go after Olympic fame.

ALBERT WOODS (pillow)

Always when you look at Woodsy
He's snoring away with zest;
So to him we give this pillow
On which his head may rest.

WILLIAM BAIER (drum)

As president of the Junior class,
You made the Prom just hum;
As a souvenir of that gala night,
We thought you'd like this drum.

MR. SPRAGUE (book)

You've guided us so loyally
And helped us on our way
Of all your kindly interest
We pause to think today.

As a token of our friendship
And our good wishes too
We have for you this little book
May it bring good luck to you.

For all I have some candies
That grew on a nutmeg tree ;
Whoever dares to eat them,
Will never grow up—like me.

And now my fun is ended ;
My shadow is nudging me,
And a little wind is waiting
To take me over the sea.

Perhaps when twenty years have gone
Or twenty and five or more,
You'll hear a little tapping,
And I'll be at your door.

To see if you still are merry,
If a twinkle is still in your eye ;
So just be looking for me ;
It won't be long—goodbye !

SALUTATORY

BY RALPH E. McLAIN, JR.

Parents, Teachers, Members of the School Committee, and Friends:

It is indeed a pleasure to welcome you here tonight in the name of the class of 1939. It is like being in the showroom of a great garage tonight, for here we have the newest models and the latest styles. You who have had so much to do with their construction have been invited to make a final inspection before they start out on the road. They have passed the severest tests, and now, after a final check, they are on parade before they start out on the highways of the future.

HIGHWAYS OF THE FUTURE

Not long ago, a man impersonating the first president of the United States rode to his inauguration in New York City. His vehicle was an old coach and four, a slow and uncomfortable thing to travel in even in this modern day of hard-surfaced roads. How much more so one hundred fifty years ago when the road at best was dusty and rough and at its worst a muddy, slimy slough!

Of course, we of the twentieth century have been accustomed to thinking that our forefathers naturally had a hard and slow time getting places. We young folks find it hard to believe that it was not so very long ago that there were no airplanes, no automobiles, and no radios. We can't realize that the modern, streamlined miracles have grown up with us and that before our time there were none.

One thing we do decry, however, is that the road of yesterday is slowing down the car of today. We see that, although the rutted track of the horse and buggy days has been paved over, the ratio of improvement between the automobile and the highway has been increasing. The narrow streets and roads of yesterday are scarcely adequate for the traffic and congestion of millions of cars, and an increasing accident rate is a grim reminder that roads built for traffic moving at fifteen miles an hour will not accommodate cars traveling at fifty or more.

The highway problem of today resolves itself into three divisions; namely, the routing of through traffic around cities, the establishment of direct intercity speedways, and most important, the relief of intracity congestion.

One of the most progressive cities in the circumvention of congested areas is New York City. Designed for perfection in beauty and traffic control, the parkway system under Robert Moses is truly a Utopia for automobiles. Tendron-like parkways, beautifully landscaped, stretch north and east to New England, gathering the streams of traffic together into a fast moving river, then directing this current safely and easily past the pulsating island of Manhattan across the Hudson River to points south.

One of the most important links of this system is not even in New York, but in Connecticut. The Merritt Parkway, by-passing the communities of Greenwich, Stamford, and Norwalk with their suburbs, is perhaps the most perfect parkway yet conceived by engineers. It is a divided highway, completely landscaped, with no grade crossings, no cross traffic, and no glaring direct lighting; reflectors set in the curb outline the road for many feet ahead. Traffic is always traveling at forty-five miles an hour, and no lumbering trucks slow it down.

The most important facts are these, however. During the first three months of operation on this parkway, only 46 accidents were reported, 18 of which resulted in personal injury and none of which were fatal. During the same period between the same points on the Boston Post Road which parallels it, 111 accidents occurred, one of which was fatal. Compare this with the 1937 score of 186 when there was no parkway!

While parkways around congested areas are excellent for re-routing through traffic, automobilists are still subject to the narrow country highways between cities. Frequently slowed down by local village traffic through traffic is finding it more and more difficult to get through. In some states, notably Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Maryland, fast express highways are being constructed around small villages and towns. These express highways carry through-traffic directly to important cities without the encumbering local traffic. Notable among these highways are Route 9 in Massachusetts between Boston and Worcester, Route 1 in New Jersey between Newark and Trenton, and Route 40 in Maryland between Aberdeen and Baltimore. Constructed mainly for fast travel, they carry automobilists safely and quickly between these points.

The most important problem of present-day traffic control, however, is not the routing of traffic around cities, nor the hastening of traffic between cities, but the control of intracity congestion itself. Narrow streets, congested intersections, lack of parking facilities—all these problems in themselves contribute to this one great problem.

One factor, of course, is through traffic. Wherever it cannot be routed around, through traffic should be carried by express ramps, tunnels, or viaducts, examples of which are the West Side Ramp of New York, the Pulaski Skyway of Newark, the Orleans Street Viaduct of Baltimore, and the proposed sub-Manhattan tunnel in New York.

Another problem is parking. Insufficient parking areas, parking restrictions, and narrow streets result in violation of parking laws, double parking, and increased congestion. Solutions to the problem are special buildings designed with several parking lots. Many cities have expended great amounts of money to widen streets and install diagonal parking. In several cities, stores purchase or rent lots for parking, while in Washington, D. C., a large store has built a two or three-floored ell expressly for parking.

But the main problem is, as Chief Thomas H. MacDonald, U. S. Bureau of Public Roads so pointedly puts it, that "the man on the street thinks we have to go in on present right of ways, the streets that grew up from cowpaths." In other words, in order to provide a program of bigger and better streets, the people must stand fully behind the government. One must not infer that the people are unanimously against better highways. The Merritt Parkway, already mentioned, built with the cooperation of the Fairfield County Planning Association by the state of Connecticut, stands as an example of what public-spirited people can do. But, on the other hand, when the city of Detroit decided to widen Woodward Avenue, it took $10,000,000 and ten years just to acquire the right of way.

One of the favorite expressions of the American businessman is, "How much?" Undoubtedly that is the first thought when something new is offered for sale. And the answer here is, "Plenty."

When a bill for the construction of transcontinental intercity super-highways was introduced into Congress recently, the cost was estimated at many billions of dollars. It was estimated further that tolls would never pay for them. Quite true, when tolls are estimated at so much per car or so much per person. Taxation? Of course not; taxes are high enough as it is. But new highways must be paid for, and the people must pay for them; therefore, tolls must be levied on the people who use the roads.

In New York City there are three main traffic arteries across the Hudson River. There is a toll of fifty cents on each of these routes, which are two miles in length. In other words, it costs over 25 cents a mile to travel between New York and New Jersey; yet people think nothing of it. It is estimated that an automobilist can keep the running cost down to one or two cents a mile on open country roads. It is also estimated that it costs two, three, and four times that much to operate a car in congested traffic. Would it not seem logical that tourists would pay two or three cents a mile to go around congestion rather than four to eight cents to go through traffic?

If you come right down to it, a toll of a penny a mile for a new highway is not exorbitant. An automobilist could go fifty miles on a half a dollar. But, you say, it was estimated that tolls would not pay for a new highway system. No, when they are figured at so much per car. For example, let's return to the Merritt Parkway. When this highway is completed, it will cost around $27,000,000. It was estimated that during the first three months, about 350,000,000 vehicle-miles of travel were covered at an average of from 20,000 to 25,000 cars per day. Suppose there were a toll of one cent per mile per car. It does not take much mathematics to figure that during the first three months there would have been a revenue of $3,500,000 and that the parkway would have paid for itself in a little over two years.

One might say that it would be expensive for the people who use it often. It would be no more expensive than traveling two miles between New York and New Jersey at the rate of twenty-five cents a mile. Furthermore, the people who use it more ought to pay a little more.

But, regardless of cost, a new highway system will soon become an absolute necessity, just as national defense is a necessity today. Sometime, perhaps in the near future, perhaps not for many decades, super-highways will cross and recross this continent, perhaps even linking other continents. Traffic will zoom along at a rate of one hundred miles an hour. Some of us, while we travel along one of these highways of the future, may be able to look back and wonder how we ever managed to remain alive in the present-day muddle of congestion, which clogs our antiquated thoroughfares, while the spectre of death lurks at the crossroads and jeers.

ESSAY

BY CLAIRE CONNORTON

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AFTER

January thirteenth of this year marked the seventy-fifth anniversary of the death of a man I feel certain in saying we all know. A final glimpse at this man would show him to be a poverty-stricken patient in a charity ward of the Bellevue Hospital in New York. His only earthly possessions were the shabby clothes on his back, and a tattered wallet containing thirty-eight cents and a scrap of paper bearing the words—"Dear friends and gentle hearts!" Undoubtedly this was the title of an unwritten song, for the man was Stephen Collins Foster.

Many dear friends and gentle hearts form the background of Stephen Foster's life, for he was only one of many children. The attitude of his parents, members of the pioneer aristocracy of Pittsburgh, was unfortunate. If they had only possessed the knowledge of child training and development that modern psychologists teach today, they might have known that Stephen's moody, dreamy ways of his youth were merely an outlet for his strange musical talent. Of the entire family it was probably Stephen's brother, Morrison, who best understood him. We are indebted to Morrison for the preservation of letters and material from which resulted his fine, sympathetic biography of his brother. With greatest sincerity Morrison later wrote of Stephen:

"Stephen . . . needed only elementary instruction, for his rapid brain and quick perception scorned the slow progress by the beaten path, and he leaped forward to a comprehension of the whole scope of the piano by the force of his great musical genius.

"But he was not content to rely on inspiration alone for his guidance in music. He studied deeply, and burned much midnight oil over the works of the masters, especially Mozart, Beethoven, and Weber. They were his delight, and he struggled for years and sounded the profoundest depths of musical science. The simple melodies which he gave to the public were not the accidental rays from an uncultured brain, but were the result of the most thorough and laborious analysis of harmonies, and when he completed them and launched them on the world, he knew they would strike favorably the ear of the most critical as well as unlearned in music."

Morrison's feelings were not shared by the other members of the family, whose attitude was characteristic of most Americans in the nineteenth century. The cultivation of material things, the physical necessities of life, was the chief consideration, and Stephen's talent was not taken seriously nor encouraged. Wm. Foster, his father, had his own ideas of music. In his scrap book was pasted a clipping from an 1830 magazine which read:

"Music is, doubtless, a delightful accomplishment; it hath charms to soothe the savage beast and soften dull rocks.' All this I believe and acknowledge to be true. But, I would humbly submit to the young ladies of this precocious, intellectual and highly accomplished generation, that all sounds which are producible from a piano are not Music! Oh! is it not a torture to sit with sad civility and listen to that disease called a popular song, Why the thing is more contagious than the cholera. Every amateur catches a popular tune; and one has to listen to it for the thousand and first time, varied only by the blunders and affectations of the players."—and that was one hundred and nine years ago.

With his parents taking such an attitude, it is no wonder that they did not realize he could exercise his natural talents and make them his life work. As a child Stephen disliked the routine and discipline of the class-room although his scholastic standing was high. He took great delight in wandering through the woods near his home with his books and pencils. In his solitude he acquired an appreciation for the simple beauties of nature. Had he been given musical training at an early age, his music would, perhaps, have lost its simple, unaffected style, but Stephen's task would have been far easier. Musical inspirations kept entering his head, but with no training, he was at a loss to interpret them. No one realized that he would be a misfit as long as he pursued any other vocation.

The simplicity of his style is revealed in his plantation songs, which are some of his most natural contributions. It is, indeed, odd that aside from a short visit to Louisville as a child, he saw little of the real South; but Pittsburgh is at the head of the Ohio River, and boats traveled regularly from there to New Orleans, carrying cargoes and negro deckhands who furnished a touch of the far South. Later, when Stephen went to Cincinnati for a few years, he came still closer to Southern life on the wharves and docks where goods for his brother's warehouse were landed. Olivia Pise, a "bound girl," a type of servant in the Foster household, probably gave Stephen his first impressions of negro singing, for it was she who took him to negro church revival meetings.

The southern atmosphere acquired in this manner is revealed in Oh! Susanna, one of his plantation songs, which with its nonsensical verse and rollicking tune, took an immediate hold upon the public. The song even traveled to foreign lands. In 1853 a writer tells how he heard "a wandering Hindoo minstrel sing Oh! Susanna in Delhi." The gold rush of 1848 is probably responsible for making this song most typically an American folk-song. The theme song of the gold searchers on the trail and around the campfire was Oh! Susanna and its carefree lilt endeared it to the hearts of these pioneers. Foster's songs such as Oh! Susanna, Nelly Bly, Old Black Joe, and The Camptown Races may be called folk-songs because they have become far more important in the minds of the people who sing them than their composer.

Nevertheless, Stephen Foster will always be remembered for his Old Folks at Home. Portraying the feeling uppermost in his own mind, his overpowering love for his own home, this song with its simple, homely sentiments has proved to be one of the world's most famous songs, ranking with Home Sweet Home. Its simplicity is amazing and the repetition of the lines would be monotonous in anything short of a masterpiece.

Stephen also wrote a type of song different from the plantation variety. One, extremely popular today, is the tender love song, Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair. Perhaps it is not known to you that Jeannie was his wife, for in 1850 after a short courtship he married Jane McDowell, a beautiful young lady with auburn hair. Stephen always claimed he first fell in love with her hair.

When he journeyed to New York in 1860, it was without Jane, and in the unfriendly cosmopolitan atmosphere of this strange city, he could not adjust himself to his environment. Born with such an inherent love for his home, he needed the surroundings of his youth and his relatives and friends. Without them his resistance to the drinking habit was lowered and a decline commenced.

The decline was quite rapid, for in the course of four short years, Stephen Foster, a popular composer, earning in the vicinity of $1,600 a year, became a poor wretch of a man without even money to pay for food or lodging. Death came to him on January 13, 1864 as the result of injuries received from a fall.

Thus ended the life of Stephen Foster, who began his career as a popular song writer in an age when the people of America lacked culture. They were more intent upon commerce than the fine arts, and industrial prosperity was their chief goal. They were a nation rich in material wealth, but not far advanced in intellectual pursuits. Musicians, artists, and writers were striving to gain recognition. Foster was a pioneer in the field of the popular song. His compositions express the true pioneer spirit of his age. Picture, if you can, the struggle of this man to set to music the depths and heights of human emotions, the joys, sorrows, longings, and ambitions of an age when culture was seeking to gain a foothold on the lives of a commercial and industrial-minded people. Today we realize his great success, and appreciate the true value of his melodies that express the deeply cherished sentiments of the American spirit, and the human spirit the world over. From being the popular songs of their day, thought destined to an early oblivion, they have survived the test of time, and will always remain dear to the hearts of the American people.

VALEDICTORY

BY MARY JANE CLAFLIN

TUSITALA

There is a thing called the enthusiasm of youth. Now the honorable Mr. Noah Webster describes this enthusiasm as a "state of impassioned emotion, strong excitement of feeling on behalf of a cause", while Mr. Locke adds that it "arises not from divine revelation or reason, but from a warmed or overweening imagination."

Now I am far from quibbling with Mr. Webster or Mr. Locke, who are beyond my sphere, but, coming down to the facts of the case, I wonder if enthusiasm is such a heady, senseless passion as they describe. Isn't a certain amount of it, limited if you wish, a necessary ingredient of all optimism and so of a happy life? Enthusiasm, or, as William Lyon Phelps puts it, "the being interested in things", is the riser, the yeast and the baking powder, in life. It belongs not only nor even largely to the realm of youth but dwells among the older people too. As you look over the circle of your acquaintances, you usually find that the best liked and the most interesting have the largest supply of it.

Enthusiasm for life includes a certain friendliness for it and for all living things, and a certain courage in meeting life's trials. Now I am an optimist, and, according to Mr. Phelps who spoke here about a month ago, optimists are not such rare articles in the world of today. Now an optimist has to have this enthusiasm and courage of which we have been speaking. Without it, he would be weighted down beneath the vast burden of troubles which everyone thinks he has. Yet a true optimist is never a Pollyanna. He recognizes, if he is worth his salt, that the world is so full of a number of things which are evil as well as good that life is a constant struggle. Evil won't ever be righted by ignoring it. The optimist merely uses his sense of humor, his interests, and his courage to tide him over the difficulties.

In Scotland about ninety years ago there was a man who fought against almost insupportable difficulties, who fought against the disapproval of his parents that he might write, who fought for what most of us consider our common heritage, the right to live. From his father he had the inheritance of a love of romance and adventure, a yearning for the unusual, and a certain skill in using vivid words. From his mother came a cheerful disposition—and a weak chest.

As a child he lay through the long nights, his little body wracked with coughing, waiting for the dawn that was so long in coming. He shrank with terror at the awful spectre of the wind upon his mighty horse, his trappings jangling, riding through the town of a stormy evening.

This child lived in a land of his own imagination, cut off from other children and their games. Sitting in the little white bed, he traveled lands as yet untouched by foot of man; he sailed seas whose blue waters had never before been shaded by a sail. His nurse often sat beside him declaiming with dramatic vigor hymns and verses from the Bible or reading to him, establishing in him as she did so the undying love of books which helped him through his darkest years.

Visits to his grandparents' home at Colinton shed occasional rays of sunshine on his life, warming the bud to blossom beneath the kindly influence of cousins of his own age, whom he easily beguiled hour after hour with tales woven from the fabric of his own imagination.

After intermittent doses of secondary schooling, he was shoved by his father into the family profession of engineering at the University of Edinburgh. The delicate boy, who always carried the lighted lamp of fancy behind his brown eyes, got very little of the immensely practical trade of engineering. Ever since he had won a Bible for composing the best story on Moses when he was still too young to write for himself, he had wished to be a great author, and he said so now. Astonished at his son's entertaining ideas of his own about his future, the father made him take up law with the understanding that he should use only his spare time for writing; but, although the lad studied law and finally passed his bar exams, he had never a case to his credit.

All this time he had been quietly training himself in the mastery of the English language; and when, on returning from vagabonding abroad, he produced lively writings colored by that imagination which had led him through the lands of fancy in his youth, his father admitted his mistake and entered as fully into his son's work as any father could have done.

And then, spurred by his love of adventure, he traveled to the New World, crossing the ocean on a ship which rolled interminably on the swells. He traversed this continent on one of the first trains, often lying fever-stricken on the hard bench which was the only comfort a second class coach afforded, often even riding on top of the cars amid the dirt and smoke in order to catch a breath of air.

California was unkind to him. Penniless and on the point of death he was working continually. Eventually an allowance from his father occasioned a change in fortune, and he married an American woman whom he had met at an artist colony in France. In truth, perhaps it had been partly this American sweetheart who had beckoned him from Scotland to America.

They spent their honeymoon, one of the strangest in history, in a deserted silver mine high in the Sierras. There were all sorts of inconveniences, and the slightest exertion sent him to his bed. Even then he had the courage to believe that he would be strong again and that his marriage would survive to be to him the joy it was to other people. Even then his aim was not merely to live, but to live, to be happy, and to write.

From this time on, his life became an Odyssey in search of health. Like Aeneas in his wanderings, he traveled many lands looking for a place to settle and establish his little capital which should send out literary works for the ages to remember. He went back again to Scot'and, to the Alps, and he met his Carthage at Skerryvore in England. While he stayed there, he seldom got outside the house and for weeks lay pale and suffering on the brink of death—afraid to move for fear of starting the hemorrhage again. Yet in the face of the greatest odds, some of his greatest works were sent from his sick bed; and finally, after the death of his father, he sailed again for America. His Cumae was Saranac, a little town in the Adirondacks, where he spent the coldest winter of his life tobogganing and skating in fur coats three inches thick and living in a little house where boiling water on the stove retained a chunk of ice in the centre.

Now, leaving this wintry climate, he sailed for the South Seas in the yacht Casco. For three years he wandered about the pleasant islands stopping now at one, now at another, and making friends at all. It was here that he first admitted to himself that he could never return to Scotland. His health here improved, yet it would have meant death for him to go back to his native land.

At last, at Samoa, he stopped and built himself a large house at Vailima looking out over the colorful tropic sea and bordered on two sides by wooded streams which gave the place its name, the meeting of the waters. Here with his wife, her son by her first marriage, and his wife's sister, he spent the most enjoyable years of his life writing and taking part in the life of the island. The natives were his friends, and crews of boats which put in at that port were almost always entertained at his house.

Then one day groups of natives in black clothing could be seen cutting out a path to the top of Mt. Vaea, which stood near his Vailima home. Their backs glistened in the sunlight; all singing and talking were hushed. In the hot forenoon even the birds were silent. A short while afterward Tusitala, the story teller, as the natives called him, was being carried under the tattered Union Jack, which had always flown over the house, to the mountain top where he was buried—looking out over the sea—

After a time, a tomb was erected there, Samoan fashion, and on one of the bronze plates was graven:

*"Under the wide and starry sky
Dig the grave and let me lie,
Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will.*

*This be the verse you grave for me,
Here he lies where he longed to be;
Home is the sailor, home from the sea,
And the hunter, home from the hill."*

You all know whom I mean; it could be no other than Robert Louis Stevenson. His bounding, lively novels have made him live for us as no other author has lived. He has the power to make grown-up and dignified businessmen boys again, and to take them a-pirating aboard the Hispaniola, to excite both their hate and their admiration for the Master of Ballantrae, and to set them a-tingle with his own love of vagabonding.

Robert Louis Stevenson wrote as he imagined himself to be, and so strongly does his impression persist that we find ourselves surprised at finding him, a wan, emaciated figure in a sick room. His imagination makes his books glow. His enthusiasm, his boyishness, his color are unique. Here is a man who did not forget his own childhood, who treated children seriously, who had the imagination of a boy and the mental breadth of a man. Herein lay his secret in the "Child's Garden of Verses." Here, and in his lovable personality, is the charm which effected all who knew him and all who read his books. He was a man who was an optimist, not ignoring the truth, but fighting difficulties with the tenacity of a tiger, who held death at bay for forty-four years. He would not die; he refused to be an invalid; he faced life with eternal courage, eternal hope.

Classmates: We are leaving this High School this night, leaving the protection, the guidance, and the companionship which has helped us so far. From now on the fight is ours. We are plunging tonight into the sea which so many have gone before us. Some have reached the lands of promise; others have fallen along the way. No one cares how we get along except our families and the few friends we have made. The responsibility is ours. We must have enthusiasm; we must have courage. Life can't be lived successfully without them.

There is a story told of Robert the Bruce who was one of Scotland's heroes. An usurper held his throne and again and again the Bruce raised men to regain it; again and again he was repulsed and sent to prison. Yet no prison could hold him. As surely as they thought he was put away for good, he would appear again with renewed attempts. Finally when he was dying, he told one of the friends at his bedside that he wanted him to do what seemed perhaps a barbarous deed. He wanted him to cut out his heart and take it in a little casket to the Holy Land. He had always wished to go on a crusade, and in death he wished his heart to rest in Palestine.

He died, and was mourned and honored by all true hearts of Scotland. This friend and a band of Scots joined the Crusades—I have forgotten which one—and bore his heart in a casket into the East. There was a day when the Saracens pressed hard on every side and the Scots were forced to give way. The Bruce's friend came to the front of the fighting and, holding the casket high, he shouted "Men of Scotland, here is the heart of Robert the Bruce!" Then he threw it into the midst of the enemy. "There is the heart of Robert the Bruce; get it!"

That was all. The next day the Scots bore the casket in triumph and placed it upon the sepulchre of Christ.

Classmates, here is life. Go get it!
